

Fintech Disruptors 2017 Research: Executive Briefing

Crossing the Fintech Bridge? Distributed Innovation in Progress and in Practice

16 November 2016

Barclays Rise London, London E1 4TT

1800 Registration & Networking

1830 Welcome & Introduction: Simon Hardie, Director, MagnaCarta Communications

1835 Key Findings: Fintech Disruptors 2017 Research – Tracking Convergence
Simon Hardie, Director, MagnaCarta Communications

1850 The Fintech Bridge: In Practice and in Progress

Another year on and despite a tepid economic recovery the banking industry remains intact, on the face of it. But what's happening behind the scenes? And how are 'old tech' companies re-imagining their roles at the cutting edge of financial services? A leading global payment and banking technology provider gives their perspective of the shifting sands of financial technology and its redefined role in bridging the future of banking.

Confirmed speaker:

Paul Thomalla, SVP, Global Corporate Relationships & Business Development, ACI Worldwide

1910 Fall and Rise: Progress, Challenge and Opportunity in Re-inventing the Big Bank

There's a growing consensus on both sides of the industry that the open-source age has finally come to financial services but what does this mean in practice for the region's largest institutions?

Two of Europe's leading banks and the venture arm of Deutsche Börse discuss their approach to innovation and the challenges and opportunities of innovating, and implementing, in complex financial institutions. Is distributed innovation here to stay?

Confirmed speakers:

Magdalena Kron, Head of Rise London, Barclays

Justin Hannemann, Head of Digital Product & UX, Santander UK

Hugo Gomez, Senior Vice President, DB1 Ventures, Deutsche Börse

1950 Does This Change Everything? A New Architecture for Banking

Despite continued controversy around Bitcoin, real world applications for the underlying technology, the blockchain, are gathering pace. While reservations about the practicality of using blockchain for high volume retail financial services businesses persist, for some this hasn't dampened enthusiasm for its potential to re-invent the systems that underpin everyday banking.

A high profile start-up and renowned influencer Chris Skinner debate the far-reaching implications of the technology and the likely reality. Is blockchain an idea whose time has come?

Confirmed speakers:

Paul Taylor, Founder and CEO, Thought Machine

Chris Skinner, CEO, The Finanser

2030 Questions & Answers

2015 Join us for Networking & Drinks

powered by